HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA TO GIVE FREE CONCERT FRIDAY EVENING 8 P.M.

More Than 100 Children To Play Community
Singing

The concert to be given by the combined orchestras of the Washington Township schools on Friday evening, May 18, promises to be an event of epoch-making importance for the district. Over 100 boys and girls have been working hard and final rehearsals indicate that the orchestra will play with power and finish remarkable for a group that has played together such a short time. The concert will be free, the only requirement for admission being that one come early enough to get into the hall, for a record crowd is anticipated. The concert will start at 8 o'clock and will offer many splendid features. Miss Jewel Anderson will be soloist on this occasion, playing Grieg's "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," a brilliant and beautiful piano number. The complete program is as follows:

Star Spangled Banner.....Audience
Sullivan.....The Lost Chord
Four old folksongs arranged for orchestra:
Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes
All Through the Night, Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms
Annie Laurie,
Handel.....Largo
Suppe.....Selections from Poet and Peasant Overture,
Washington Union High School
Orchestra.
Grieg.....Wedding Day at Troldhaugen
Piano solo by Miss Jewel Anderson
Community singing, American Songs,
Massa's in De Cold Gronud,
Home Sweet Home,
Old Black Joe,
America,
America the Beautiful.

The orchestra draws from all over Washington Township. It includes players of the various instruments found in the modern symphony orchestra, including flutes, oboes, clarinets, French horns, violas, cellos, and string basses, as well as the more familiar instruments such as violins, cornets, trombones, saxophones, etc. Many of these players give promise of becoming splendid players, given further time and effort. Frank Furtado, who as an aviator has many times flown high over Washington Township in his plane, decided he would have to go correspondingly low musically, so heads the string bass section, which gives the orchestra the deep tones of the great bass viol.

That such an orchestra means much to the district is the unanimous opinion of all who have heard it, and without doubt the concert Friday evening, at the high school auditorium in Centerville will be one of the most interesting musical events ever offered the people of the district.

Eighteen scouts will present a short play, "A Night With the Scouts" and in addition a special scout movie and a rollicking comedy will be shown through special arrangements. There will also be a musical program. The public is urged to patronize this affair, the proceeds of which will be used for the benefit of the Irvington scouts and those who attend are promised an evening of unusual entertainment.

Boys taking part are: Paul Aust, Eades Carroll, Robert and William Engel, Elmo Grimmer, Morio Ichisaka, Joseph and John Nunes, Roy Gularde, Wallace and Gordon Pond, James Harlan, Allan Hirsch, George Rutter, Ned Witherly, Frank and John Wipfl and Frank Vargas.

The program has been arranged under the direction of Scoutmaster J. R. Stevenson.

DRUIDS INSTALL NEW OFFICERS AT TUESDAY BANQUET

Tom Silva, district deputy, installed the following new officers of the Centerville Grove of Druids Tuesday evening: M. C. Betterencourt, Noble Arch; John Bem, vice-arch; Manuel Perry, conductor; Antone Lewis, inside guard; Al Paschote, outside guard; J. S. Furtado, recording secretary; F. M. Furtado, financial secretary and M. S. Sinas, treasurer.

Following the installation a banquet was served.

Manuel J. Bernardo, grand marshal, presented John Olivera, Jr., with the Past-Noble-Arch watch chain.

Mr. Bernardo lacks only two steps of reaching the highest office in the state Druids' organization. Due to lack of time to carry out further duties, however, he will notify the state convention at Sacramento that he is not a candidate for further promotion.

Judge Silva Seeks Prohibition Jurors

A panel of 25 prospective jurors has been called in the case of the People vs. Perry, defendant being charged with a violation of the Wright act. Annual Fashion Show To Be Held May 25

The annual fashion show of the domestic science girls of the Washington Union High school will be held on the evening of May 25, according to announcement by Principal E. B. Hodges.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE FOR BOY SCOUTS REPORTS $226.50

A total of $226.50 has been collected for the year's quota for Boy Scout expenses, according to report made by Chairman Dr. Chas. H. Law. Other out-standing pledges are still to be collected which will raise the total slightly.

The Warm Springs traffic sign is to be taken down. It will probably be purchased by E. E. Dias.

President Braun reported that George C. Roeding, Jr., has volunteered to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce in any program they might undertake to beautify the town. This matter was held over for discussion, the idea being declared a very good one.

Further discussion of plans for the annual banquet took place but no definite decision was made. A barbecue was one of the ideas presented instead of the dance and dinner which proved such a success last year. There seemed to be a diversity of opinion as to whether ladies should be included and out of consideration to the respective wives we refrain from printing names of those members who vigorously advocated "leaving the women at home."

George Donovan announced the opening sale of gas appliance apparatus in the MacRae building this week anticipating the coming of gas to the township in the immediate future.

Secretary R. K. Wilson will go as delegate from the Niles Chamber of Commerce to the Pacific Southwest Exposition at Long Beach the latter part of this month.

President Braun will act as attendance chairman for next week.

REGISTER STAFF ENJOYS HOUSE OF CRANE DINNER AND FULTON COMEDY

Representatives of The Register agreed unanimously that the dinner and theater party given by the editor was an unqualified success, from the first course of the House of Crane's special Monday evening dinner to the last curtain call of The Fulton's popular star, Marjorie Rambeau, who received a rousing tribute from a capacity audience present to witness her closing performance for the season. Miss Rambeau and her ably-assisting cast will be seen in "The Scarlet Woman," a jolly rollicking comedy woven about a village girl who dared go to New York and adopt a baby, with the expected complications ensuing, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, Sunday's program and those following to be musical comedy successes.

A five-course dinner was served in the patio of the House of Crane at 7 o'clock. Whether it was the attractiveness of the appointments, the excellence of the food, the prompt service or the comradery inevitable when a group of newswriters get together, representatives of the seven communities of the township expressed themselves as grateful to the host not only for a most palatable repast but for their discovery of a place to dine when they wish to entertain under pleasant circumstances at a not exorbitant rate.

ALAMEDA COUNTY COW TESTING CLUB TO HOLD MEETING DURING SUMMER

The first regular business meeting of the directors of the Alameda County Cow Testing Association was held Friday evening, May 4th, at the Zwissig Dairy with E. A. Heath of Centerville, president; Neil Beck, Santa Rita, vice-president and Carl Zwissig, Decoto, secretary-treasurer. This is the first business meeting held by the directors since their organization meeting of a month ago. In addition to the directors, there were present J. C. Doke, cow tester and the Farm Advisor.

At the meeting the directors worked out a travel schedule for the cow tester which designates the order in which dairies are to be visited during the month by the tester. The directors thought it wise to decide upon some rules governing the type of publicity on the work of the association which may be given to the public. The directors approved of the form of report on the association which is to be mailed into the Dairy Specialist at the University monthly. In addition, they decided enviable place in the hearts of East-bay theater goers was obvious from the spontaneous applause their portrayal of "The Scarlet Woman" brought Monday evening. Miss Rambeau's beauty and charm found a fitting vehicle in the clever comedy chosen by Palline Frederick for her season's performance. If George Barnes as leading man was a trifle disappointing, Allen Vincent as the unaffected drug clerk who believed that the way to make a success of business in this hurrah age was to play a brass band and paint your front bright red, more than made up for it.

Thelma Barnes as the typical flapper was perfect in her characterization and Jane Corcoran put a good deal more into the maid's part than is usually accomplished. Other players ably supported the leading roles, including the jealous wives and the foxy husbands, the summer visitor from New York who had been "playing around with chickens so long that he clucked in his sleep," the village wallflower who longed to be tempted, and last but not least, "Felicite," aged only four months, who actually spoke her part across the footlights and serenely viewed the audience who gave her repeated applause.

The action throughout was rapid, the lines clever and not without a Leading Roles

Members of the cast of the senior play, "Daddy Long Legs," given at Washington Union high school Friday evening, and Miss Taylor who coached the production have been receiving hearty congratulations because of the splendid performance which was witnessed by a capacity audience. Especial mention was made of the leading lady, Ellen Dusterberry, in the role of Judy and Lloyd Hyglund who played opposite her as Jervis Pendleton, their interpretation of these two personalities being unusually well done.

Music by the school orchestra under the direction of John C. Kimmer added to the enjoyment of the evening's entertainment. Other members of the cast of "Daddy Long Legs" were Bob Amyx, Edward Enos, Morrison Green, Lester Nunes, John Andrade, Carol Overacker, Margaret Sinclair, Elizabeth Costa, Margaret White, Florence Aust, Helen Andrade, Daisy Mendenhall, Lena Rivers, Hazel Hempelman, Marshall Green and Marie Escobar.

G. & E., at San Francisco this morning.

UNKNOWN PROWLERS RANSACK HOME OF PEDRI OF SUNOL

Ransacking but no obvious robbery of the residence of A. Pedri of Sunol Tuesday is causing Deputy Sheriff Hugo Radbush and Constable Al Vervais of Pleasanton to start on a search for motives of whoever so sadly upset the housekeeping arrangements of Pedri.

Whoever the prowlers were they over-looked a small amount of money and jewelry that were in the house. Nothing was found to be missing.

TWO BOTTLES OF WINE COST BOVY WOMAN $100 FINE

Jessie Bovy, alleged proprietor of an establishment in Alvarado said to be run for illegal purposes, was arrested recently and charged with possession of liquor. Two bottles of wine were found in her room and more booze was found outside the house. She admitted possession of the wine and was fined $100 by Judge J. A. Silva Tuesday afternoon.

FRANK ELECTRIC STORE TO STAGE COOKING SCHOOL

How to use your electric stove will be one of the topics of discussion at the cooking school to be put on by the Frank Electric store at 920 B. Street, Hayward, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, at 2 o'clock. Miss Alice Goodwin, home economist, will be in charge of the classes which will be free to the public.

Many a housewife has been disappointed in results which she obtained from her electric range and this is due in many cases to the fact that the owner did not know how to operate the stove correctly.

EDITORS: Mrs. F. O. Bunting and Mrs. George Colt

Mrs. H. Gregory has been spending several days in San Jose.

Mrs. C. Graham spent the week end with relatives in Oakland.

One of the several bridge clubs was invited to San Francisco on Tuesday. They all went down on the train and had a very pleasant day.

Miss M. Morris was hostess to the "Sweet 16" on Thursday. It was the last of the series but Mrs. Bell wished to entertain the club on the 17th. At the close Mrs. Bell had won the first prize; Miss M. Morris, slams; and Mrs. M. Mathiesen, consolation.

Mrs. E. T. Chadbourne, who has been giving a series of social affairs entertained a few of her friends this past week. They played bridge.
At the close, Mrs. F. O. Bunting stood first; Mrs. Hyglund, second; and Mrs. S. Hansen took consolation prize. The ladies were invited into the dining room which was beautifully decorated with pink roses.

They enjoyed the refreshments which Mrs. Chadbourne is noted for.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Blacow gave a dinner party last Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. Metzger.
It was most enjoyable and all were glad to meet the charming bride.

Members of the Athletic Club made a generous contribution toward the sidewalk fund, this insuring the laying of pavement in front of the historic town hall. Sidewalk improvement program in general is progressing favorably.

IRVINGTON

The Boy Scouts of Irvington are putting on their play on May 23rd in the Leal Theater. This play, will introduce the audience to the work which boy scouts are trained to do. Much fun has been introduced in the way of comedy and the boys are all enthusiastically taking their parts in the rehearsals every week. The play will be supported by a movie comedy and a picture on scouting which will be loaned by headquarters. The price of admission will be 50c and 25c. The boys decided they would charge anyone up to and including the high school age 25c.

The Business Men of Irvington met in the Heller restaurant on Monday and an interesting meeting was enjoyed. Mr. Scales, the new principal of the Irvington Grammar school, was introduced to the meeting and complimented the men upon having such a well organized school. The men took the stand along with the other Chambers of Commerce, to help in cleaning the highways from unnecessary signs which have been hiding the beauty of the landscape. The Chamber will meet to conduct its business on the evening of May 28th.

The Irvington Community Church is putting on a campaign to paint the church and judging from the enthusiastic response of the people of the town it will probably be finished in a month.

Schools Planning For Closing Exercises

Cycol is refined to meet the most rigorous tests of modern high speed motors. It has "endurance beyond belief"

Stability The new Cycol will stand the hardest kind of usage. It is refined to meet the severest conditions of heat and pressure developed by the modern high compression engines, assuring you an unbroken oil film where heat, pressure and friction are greatest.

No Acids The new Cycol refining process eliminates the use of acids, though most refiners use them. While acids clear the "crude oil" they chemically change its structure and composition, thus seriously cutting its lubricating value.

The new refining process for Cycol is different in every respect. It selects from the "crude" those elements of greatest lubricating value and stability in performance, rejecting at the same time those elements which readily break down under engine heat and cause excessive carbon deposits.

So Cycol gives a protective oil film on cylinder walls and moving parts, not vapor at the breather pipe.

Less Carbon As to carbon, Cycol like all other oils deposits some carbon. But it deposits less carbon than any other oil. The most exhaustive tests have proven that statement.

And even more important, the carbon that is deposited by Cycol is soft and easily removable. It is not hard or sticky and cannot scratch a cylinder.

Prove it Yourself For these reasons you will find that Cycol gives you the finest results you have ever known—more perfect lubrication, "endurance beyond belief" and the elimination of carbon trouble.

Dublin Canyon Road More Than Half Done

That the Dublin canyon highway is now more than half completed, and will be open for public use by the first of July is the statement made by a member of the firm of Casson and Lee, contractors in charge of the work. When completed the new highway will be 40 feet wide and a little more than seven miles long.

Three new bridges have been built—one at Palomares, one at Canyon Inn and the third at Castro Hill. These bridges are complete and are read for heavy traffic. The Casson and Lee outfit, consisting of 20 trucks and 40 men and a lot of miscellaneous road machinery was moved to the Hayward end of the highway Saturday, and work will begin there Monday. An average of 20 carloads of crushed rock is being used daily as the base for the pavement. Laying of asphalt on the base already put in will begin about the middle of next week.

The "straight line" of communication

An axiom in mathematics says—

"A straight line is the shortest distance between two points."

In the communication field where time measures distance, telephone service is the "straight line". For telephone service is the fastest means of conveying thought to others nearby and in distant places.

The extension of improved operating methods has decreased the time involved in completing calls to other cities and towns and greatly increased the areas in which calls by telephone number—"Number Service" calls—may be placed in the same manner as local calls.

Points to which number service is available are designated in the front pages of the directory at every telephone.

"I've got a pair of field glasses, sir," offered Eadie, "and maybe if I can crawl just the littlest bit around the corner I might be able to see the gun and tell if there was anyone behind the breastwork."

"Good idea," agreed the general, "only go ahead and do it quickly."

Eadie at once crept on hands and knees to the edge of the bank and then lay down and wriggled around, oblivious of the mud, until he could see along the road westward. The helmet lay a little way to his left motionless in the center of the road. Lifting his head slightly, he could see the gunpit some twenty yards away. Eadie brought his glasses to bear and was distinctly shocked by the effect. The powerful lenses shot the gunpit right under Eadie's eyes; he could see the crumbling sod, the mud with which the breastwork had been put together, and the packs that were its foundation. He wriggled a little further. Ah! There were five dead Germans in the mud of the road, lying curled up as though they slept, but the flat, punctured appearance of those men showed that they were dead. The sight of them was cheering. It showed that the gunpit had been rushed and that the rushers must be all right, but lying low awaiting another attack. Maybe they could see something that Eadie couldn't. Again he looked at the gunpit. There was the mud, the hastily cut sod, a corner of a blanket, an empty clip. Just a corner of the gunpit was in view and in this corner some soldier had cast his slicker. Eadie brought the glass to bear on the breastwork at that point, for the sleeve of the slicker was draped over it. From this sleeve drooped a wrist and hand, a purplish clay-colored hand, with blue nails. Eadie thereupon crawled back to the men in the cart path.

"Sir," reported Eadie, "the gun crew are all dead. I couldn't see into the pit, but I saw the gun off the tripod and a dead man's hand, and if there were any men in there alive they wouldn't leave a guy lying like that, however careless they might be of a gun barrel."

"I thought as much. What killed them, could you tell?"

"No, sir. The boche had rushed them and there were some stiff in front of the gun. Grenades did it, probably."

"What will we do, Adolph?" asked the general. "You've been at this longer than I have. Every war has its peculiar phases and I'm never the man to claim that I know everything. What do you advise me to do?"

"Maybe we wait for the airplane," suggested Adolph. "If it don't take too long time. De boche she'll send us one for to see what we do next. If she don't send, look out for another attack. If she send, look out for shells. We got two roads to cover, dis one an' de rudder one."

There was a pattering sound on the main road, clicking and rattling as though ghostly horses trotted there.

"No," said Adolph, after all had listened a few seconds. "We only got one road for a while. She firin' moshen gun on de road. Like I told you, watch out for airplane."

"Come back," ordered the general. "I'll fix that." He borrowed Eadie's whistle and blew it shrilly for attention.

"Keep up your courage, men," said he, "you've done well. They won't bother us any more after that repulse. In case an airplane appears I want everyone to take his rifle and get ready to fire it. But don't fire until I give the signal. When I blow the whistle, fire a volley. If I think we can get to a second one I'll blow again. We may not bring him down, but we'll drive him away. That's all. Remember, don't fire until I give the signal. Come Adolph, let's go up and arrange some kind of service of security for the upper end of this place. You men stay here."

"He don't know the half of it," remarked Jake when the general had gone. "I know what we're gonna get out of this fight. Six feet o' French real estate and a pat with a shovet. An' I give up a good job currying mules to be a liaison man."

"A guy never knows what a mule is till he goes to war," remarked the gloomy man. "I used to drive a milk route an' I was always crabin' because I had to get up at three in the mornin'. But I got home at ten-thirty an' could sleep all the rest of the day if I wanted to. An' now I ain't shut my eyes for a week. Maybe more. It was such a long time ago I lost track."

"Now," said Eadie, fishing in the pockets of his muddy blouse, "we'll have a tailor-made cigarette. We aren't dead yet and we may live to see another pay day. I crave to. The eagle hasn't done his old bit for me for a long time and I'd like to spend a little money before I do my part to make Fianders fields fertile."

"There," remarked Jake, interrupting his task of planning his tattered blouse together with safety pins from bandoliers, "that's just in line with my thought. This here army promised us food, lodging, an' medical attend-ance free. We ain't had neither for a week. I've a mind to write to the papers about it. The worst thing I've found about war is that there ain't no noon hour. They works double shift all night, too."

"I wonder if those Jerry stiff's out in the field have got any chow on them," said Eadie. "They're in full pack. I think we could get out to them if we went at it carefully."

"We can look anyway," agreed Jake. He and Eadie reached up and took hold of some of the hedge roots and hoisted themselves up the bank very, very carefully. The thought had just come to Eadie that it might be a foolhardy thing to leave the cover of the bank, when the hedge was suddenly beaten as by a gust of wind.

SWISH! Twigs and dead leaves flew. The two men at once let go their holds and fell to the bottom of the ditch, where Eadie scrambled hastily to his feet. He had heard beside him that sinister heavy thud that means a bullet has found a resting place, and he knew that Jake was hit.

Jake still lay in the mud and in that second all the color had left his face, leaving it a dead white behind his red beard.

"Where'd it get yuh?" cried Eadie, lifting Jake's shoulders and sliding his own knee under them for support. The gloomy man looked on in open-mouthed horror. Jake grinned, a feeble grin that died away almost as soon as it began.

"They got me," said he, "can yuh tie that?"

Then, even while Eadie laid him down again and reached for his first aid packet, he was dead. The life had run out of him in those few seconds and Eadie had felt it going, had felt the shoulders against his knee turning from living flesh to lifeless clay.

"Where'd it get him?" husked the gloomy man.

"I don't know," said Eadie dully. "What difference does it make?"

He got to his feet and looked to see who had noticed the affair. No one. Stray bullets had been finding their way into that place for some time. A man would drop suddenly, shot through the head, or one would cry out, or yet another would hurl himself into the mud and lie kicking like a horse. The garrison had watched these casualties with horror and like passengers on a ship's deck, who watch the waves, the longer they looked, the sicker it made them.

Eadie went to the bush under which he had tucked his overcoat, and bringing it back, he spread it over Jake. His pistol, empty though it was, he belted on. Every one, he noticed, was doing something. The man who sits and waits for death to come and take him is the one who gets the horrors and runs shrieking from a shadow, so these men kept their minds from their situation by work. Darkness was coming on and another attack was imminent. The lack of shell fire and of gas showed that the Germans had forces in the immediate neighborhood, who would likewise suffer from the gas and among whom the shells might fall.

"They've got a machine gun going on us," said Eadie to the gloomy man, "and it's close at hand."

The other made no reply, but drew his gas mask stupidly from the carrier and, turning it in his hands, replaced it again. "Do you know any thing about machine guns?" demanded Eadie again.

"No," said the gloomy man, "I ain't much of a soldier. If you want to know anything about the milk business I could tell you. I use to be the smartest driver they had. It's funny the people that would put out their bottles dirty, though. Old man Thom as that owned the pulp mill and Doc Jupson, an'—"

"Steady," said Eadie. "Sit down now and don't think about anything. Here, come down the road a ways. There now, sit down and clean your rifle. Suppose the general came along and wanted to inspect it?" Eadie left the gloomy man fumbling at the breech cover of his rifle and walked further along the road. "Poor lad," he muttered, "he'll begin deliverin' milk to these doughboys in a few more minutes. Hey, there, Red Cross, you see that bareheaded bird down there taking off his breech cover? Keep your eye on him; I think he's started off his cork."

"That so?" said the medical corps man. "I'll just amble down there. What we need now to make this picnic a success is a couple of shell-shockers rumin' hermitlike up and down this ditch."

"Have you seen any grenades around here by any chance?" asked Eadie.

"Sure," said the other, "that bird with the shiri full of bullets on his got some."

There was a man sitting under the bank who had on a species of jerkin, the front covered with pockets for holding ammunition and the bottom divided into pockets for holding grenades. Eadie requested and received two grenades from this man. These he put into the pockets of his slicker and turning, walked down the path to the extreme southern end, past the prisoners there, and so to the main road. He listened here a few minutes, then as a loud clattering began, stopped, began again, and then was finally hushed, he nodded his head in satisfaction.

"I knew the d—n thing was there," he muttered. He lay down and wriggled around the corner, as he had the other time, but the view had changed. There were no German dead now and the gun was gone from the pit. But what interested Eadie, sweeping the road and the high banks on both sides with his glasses, was that from the south ditch arose a little cloud of steam, and looking for the course of this steam, he could see a long black tube that ascended the bank and disappeared over the top. It was still too light for him to cross the road where he was, but if he got into the north ditch and went downhill on the east side, he could cross there and come up in the other ditch. It was worth a try.

"I'll probably get full of lead," he muttered, wriggling into the muddy ditch and crawling carefully down hill to the left, that is, toward the Meuse, "but it's better than staying in that hole waiting to be killed."

Halfway down the hill he paused and rolled his helmet out into the road. No action. He listened for the thudding of bullets. No sound. So, then, gathering his legs under him, he leaped across the road, grabbing up his helmet in one sweep. Still silence. He began to worm his way up the hill again, but before he reached the top a shell hooted down and tore itself apart very close to the place where he had crossed the road. The place was under observation then Eadie cursed. If they started chasing him with shells, probably from a battery on the east bank of the Meuse they might very well spoil his plans. The second shell, however, burst in the field toward the American line and after it came quite a lively bombardment. Whoever had seen Eadie had thought it was the American trying to escape to their own lines and so the German artillery began to pound the field south of the road. Eadie continued his progress, but slower and slower, more and more carefully. He breathed only at longer intervals. There were things in that ditch that he had to crawl over, shutting his eyes when he did so. He paused at last for a long time listening, but could tell nothing. He took one of the grenades from his pocket and continued the journey.

A faint hissing tightened Eadie's muscles and brought him to a breathless halt. The hissing gradually died, but not before Eadie had discovered where it came from. It was the steam coming from the tube that he had seen with his field glasses. The tube lay in the ditch, its open end still breathing faint vapors, and the other end going out of sight over the high bank. Under cover of his slicker and blouse Eadie cautiously pulled the ring from the grenade. Then, oh, so carefully he seemed to flow along the bottom of the ditch till he came to the tube. It went up like a black vine and at the top of it was what Eadie sought. He stood up.

"Jake," he breathed, "if you can see me now, watch this." Then he threw the grenade.

Up into the air it went, over the bank, and disappeared. Immediately that hellish pounding began again, a buzzing as though the grenade had been a stone that disturbed a thousand rattlesnakes. Eadie shivered. He did not know much about grenades—he should have counted before he threw it—suppose it was defective—suppose they found it and dropped it back—CRACK! An explosion audible even above the pounding. The pounding stopped, whimpering cries, a rumor of running feet, silence.

"Now, then," thought Eadie, "I guess that pays for Jake." He turned around very, very carefully to go back, but instead he paused and his heart began to beat rapidly. Why go back? Why not go up and see what was at the other end of the bean stalk? He had another grenade and might as well use it here as anywhere else. There are times, after all, in battle, when a man's heart begins to sing, for he knows that the thing he is about to do is likely to cost him his life, but he is going to do it just the same and he feels justly proud of himself that he has the courage. Eadie turned, then, once more toward the bank. He tugged out the ring of the second grenade and looked up. The bank was too steep to climb there, but a few yards down the road the rain had washed out a gully. To this place Eadie crawled. Then, standing up, he took a short start and ran up the gully at full speed, came out in the field and flung himself down. He stayed there five minutes before he dared raise his head. No one had fired at him, there was no shout, no grenade banging, so he judged it safe to look around. The first look satisfied him.

Not far down the field was a dead German and near him the waist of another. There was a hole there, evidently, and the legs of the second German were in this hole. Eadie went there. The hole was occupied by two more Germans, one still alive, and by a thing that looked like a stovepipe on a sled. This was a heavy type machine gun, its support in the prone position. The tube from its cooler went over the edge of the bank into the road and it was the steam from this tube that Eadie had seen. The German machine gun, the Maxim model 1907, has its barrel water-cooled, and the water boiling after about five hundred shots, steam is ejected, so that the location of the gun would be readily detected, were it not for the tube that is attached to the cooling reservoir, and which conducts the steam to a distance or to some place where it cannot be visible to the enemy.

"Now how the h—l am I going to get this thing back?" muttered Eadie. If he could only signal for a little help—the thing was too heavy to take back alone.

"By Go—d!" cried Eadie. "Why take it back?" If the Germans rushed the hedge again he could take them in flank. If they came along the road, they were his meat. The grenade that he still held in his hand he hurled in the general direction of the German lines in case any one there was coming to see what had happened to the gun, and then he proceeded to clean out the hole.

The two Germans he shoved over the bank. One of them was alive, but Eadie had other things to do than to take care of wounded Germans. It was getting dark rapidly and the main thing was to inspect the gun while he still had light. A hasty glance showed him eight or ten boxes of ammunition, a half dozen stick grenades, and an overcoat in the hole. Then he turned to the gun.

Eadie had fired one of these one day with Ham and the machine gunners. All he had to do was to take hold of the handles, push off the safety catch, and push on the corrugated thumb piece. A glance showed him that there was half a belt of ammunition still left. When that was gone, he would see about reloading.

Suddenly, with a long hiss, a flare went up from the gulch and burst almost over Eadie's head, burning with a ghastly green light. He was wondering what it meant, when, with the roar and crash of a heavy surge on rocks, a box barrage was laid down just behind Eadie, on the eastern side of the hill, and on the line of hedge that marked the cart path. The bursts were not near Eadie, but hunks of steel began to buzz and sing, and so he kept low in the hole. That barrage meant an attack and Eadie meant to be ready for it. He put his elbows on the pads of the support as Ham had showed him, gripped the handles and waited.

The enemy came suddenly out of the gulch, in two columns, tearing across the field. The hedge crackled with rifle fire, even as the barrage swung out into the eastern side of the hill. The gun leaped under Eadie's hands as he pressed the thumb piece. Ah, what a glorious sound it made! What was that? Some one had cried out. Again that cry, audible even above the clacking of the gun and the rumble of the barrage.

"By G—d, the wounded Jerry! They're comin' up the road!"

He leaped to his feet and looked over the bank. A dark river of men was rustling along there and the wounded German that Eadie had rolled out of the hole was calling to his comrades for help.

The German machine gun could not be trained into the road. Eadie's first frantic effort showed him that. What then? Prop up the rear end? No. Get it out of the hole and onto the slope? Good. Eadie seized the front end of the support, swung it out of the hole, grabbed the back end and swung that, then cleared the ammunition belt. He worked fast, for seconds counted. A quick glance showed him that he could now fire into the far end of the road, but that if the Germans fell back and attacked him from directly below he was lost. He flung himself down, placed his elbows, seized the handle and opened fire. It was hard work, for the gun leaped and wriggled, and being poorly placed, it was doubly hard to control. He kept shoving up on the breach to keep his fire low, and had the satisfaction of seeing the dark mass below him buckle, bend, thin out, and finally disappear, leaving only the scattered wreckage of its dead behind. There was a thin cheer from the far end of the road.

"Ah, boy," remarked Eadie to himself. "What it takes to be a machine gunner I got in clusters!" He decided that just to the left of the old position of the machine gun there was a place where he could not only cover the field across the road, but also the slope where the road dropped into the gulch. Any more attacks that came up the road from the gulch could then be broken up before the enemy got up the hill.

In the remaining light he could see men crawling in the opposite field, the steady flash of rifle fire from behind the hedge, and the great black shape of an airplane that ducked and swooped and circled over the line of hedge. The barrage had stopped, except the shells that were bursting between the road and the American lines to the south.

Again Eadie seized the handles of the support and, dragging the gun behind him, he got it to the new position and swung it again toward the enemy. A new attack had just swept out of the gulch and an airplane, to aid it, was flying low and raining down bullets upon the Americans, the tracers glinting like sparks from a Roman candle. Eadie could hear voices calling, the American fire seemed to lessen, there was a thin piping, and the ragged crash of a volley. The airplane jumped as does a wild fowl that receives a charge of shot, then climbing, turned suddenly sideways and fell swiftly to earth. Crash! The gulp and roar of an explosion, and the wreckage was in flames.

"Let's go!" cried Eadie. Beyond the flames of the burning plane he could see a wave of men coming up the east face of the hill and on that wave he swung his gun. It rattled for several seconds. Silence. Eadie pounded the breech to free the jam, and pressed harder upon the thumb piece. Then he looked closely at the breech. The ammunition belt had run through. "That's simple," he muttered. He crawled over to the hole, gathered up three boxes of ammunition, and then returned. The plane blazed now, a pillar of fire from wings to up-ended tail and by its light Eadie could see that there was still another belt in the box by the gun. He seized the end of this and inserted it in the breech. The tongue went through easily and the first bullet clicked into the chamber. Eadie then trained the gun on the enemy and pushed the thumb piece. The gun remained quiet.

Understand Now That Sun Radiates Health

Two architects at Paris have built a house of which any room may have sunshine at any moment of the day, provided the sun is shining. It turns on a pivot like a railroad turntable. A finger on the electric button is all that is needed.

This may not initiate a new style of architecture, or house-building. It would be a little expensive for the average householder; he will content himself with moving his sitting or dining room to it. But the house illustrates and emphasizes the new devotion to the sun.

Our doctors and scientists have just found out new and exceedingly valuable therapeutic qualities in the sun's rays—rays that strike the skin without any intervening medium. It is nature's oldest and finest remedy, constantly used and relied upon by the

Lord's Day

Sunday, the first day of the week, at the time of the Apostle Paul, was celebrated as the day of Resurrection—the Lord's day—as distinguished from Saturday, the seventh day, celebrated by the Hebrews as the true Sabbath. It became the Christian Sabbath and day of rest several centuries later, according to an answered question in Liberty.

Pretty Soft

Explorers have found a tribe of half civilized natives in the wilds of the Asiatic Caucasus mountains called 'maiden people' by neighboring tribes because they are ruled by women," reports Capper's Weekly. "The women of the tribe appear to have carried feminism beyond the dreams of civilized modern women, but not to the disadvantage of the men for the women do all the work of the men and the woman who provides the most luxuries for her husband and sons is most respected. All the men have to do is eat the food set before them, sleep, fish and smoke stone-bowled pipes which their women fill and light for them."

Light's Long Journey

The light of the North star reaches the earth in about 300 years.

There were things in that ditch that he had to crawl over, shutting his eyes when he did so. He paused at last for a long time listening, but could tell nothing. He took one of the grenades from his pocket and continued the journey.

NEW DRAPERIES for A FEW CENTS

By Mae Martin

All of us realize nowadays how bright-colored draperies seem to invite people in, and how warm touches of color in spreads, cushions and runners help to make us love our own surroundings.

No woman need deny herself these touches of cheer, because they can easily be had at the expense of a few cents and a little planning. Curtains that are faded or drab in color can be made bright and pleasing with a package or so of Diamond Dyes. Then spreads, covers, runners, etc., can be tinted or dyed to match. Anyone can do it. Tinting with Diamond Dyes is as easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little more time. Brilliant new colors appear like magic, right over the old, faded colors. Diamond dyes give true, fadeless colors. They are the kind of dyes used when the cloth was made. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

Junior-Senior Banquet On May 31; L. Ruschin Heads Student Body

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

At the last junior class meeting which was held on May 10, the date of the Junior-Senior banquet was changed to May 31, as May 23 conflicted with the fashion show rehearsal.

Mr. Kinney, a junior advisor, made a present of five dollars to this class. The juniors appreciated it very much. The class, led by the yell leader, Doris Dutre, gave him six big cheers.

After the meeting the boys remained for electing a baseball captain. But there was no election as everyone agreed on having Antony Fields.

Freshmen Win

Fun, pep, lots of spirit, plenty of work, and tons of papers were the key notes of May 1st. The interclass contest for the paper drive closed on this date with the freshman class at the head with over 11,000 pounds.

The Sophomores had the lead and thought they had won the contest or were going to. But other classmates were not as slow as the "Soph's" thought. On the last day when the Juniors brought in two car loads and a trailer full of papers the "Soph's" almost fainted.

The Juniors wanted to win, but they received a setback. They had plenty, but not enough to place them on the high perch. The Juniors have been winning all the contests this term, but they couldn't have everything.

In this game of high spirited conflict, the graduates played "lost out." Their excuse was "we won last year, so we wanted to give the others a chance."

The great mistake was made by the upper classmen when they overlooked the freshmen, who sprang a surprise on the rest. They were not asleep. All the time they were busy in the new shop with a contest of their own among the different towns. The students of Irvington won and received a prize box of candy. Warm Springs won the booby prize, all-day suckers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ellsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Marston Dassel spent Sunday in Ripon.

Mrs. E. E. Dias was hostess to her aunt last Wednesday, the latter being enroute to Honolulu.

Mrs. Ernest Martin spent three days last week with Mrs. Edgar Clough of San Francisco, attending with a party "The Desert Song" one evening.

Papers Bring $120.

For the benefit of the curtain fund, which was started by the student body, the paper drive was conducted as interclass competition. It brought in about fifteen tons of old newspapers and magazines.

According to Mr. Hodges' report, these papers are sold for eight dollars a ton. This shows a good start toward the new curtain for the auditorium.

Girls Erect!

Last Wednesday, May 9, was a very interesting day for the girls. The girls' physical education department held a correct posture day. "I have a correct posture" was the slogan of the day. All the girls had tags with the slogan attached to their dresses. Those who acted as police had a star on their tag. Some girls, who wanted to "slop over," had to avoid them or arrest was sure to follow.

Student Visitors

On April 23 Mr. Curtis, Mr. Dean, and Mr. Kelly, honor students from Piedmont high school, were visitors at Washington high. During the morning they were received in different departments of this institution, escorted by Ellen Dusterberry and Daisy Mendenhall.

During the activity period the visitors were invited to our Scholarship Society meeting. They told our students about their honor society and its activities. Their society is called the Alpha Clan. It is not a state organization like the C. S. F., and it has a different method of receiving members. To be eligible for its membership, a student must have the required grades and excel in either scholarship, athletics, citizenship or music and art.

Our local chapter enjoyed their visit and received some new ideas.

Mrs. Bendel Submits Full Report Of Work Done During Presidency

Although highlights in the terms work of Mrs. Roland Bendel as president of the Country Club of Washington Township have appeared in The Register recently, the report in full is given below. Mrs. Bendel points out that the club has given $151 toward philanthropic projects in addition to other movements fostered by the organization for community betterment.

Mrs. Bendel reports that she has written 127 letters, presided at 11 regular meetings, ten board meetings 11 reciprocal luncheons, spent three days at the Stockton convention, five days at the state convention and in all 66 days in the service of the club.

The report in full follows:

To the members of the Country Club of Washington Township: Following is a brief report of your President's activities during the club year 1927-28, and of the outstanding accomplishment of your club during that time.

In general, the club has continued the work of my first year. I am especially proud to report that our two sections, Dramatic and Art, under the leadership of Mrs. Howard Chadbourne and Mrs. W. A. Sloan, have remained active for two years—an unusual fact in our club history, and I earnestly hope that this predicts the formation of other sections within our club. Each of these sections has furnished us with a delightful program during the year. And the Dramatic Section has produced your plays and is now preparing three others.

Our service to the community has been to sponsor and encourage a township emergency committee, an educational program; the successful formation of a township orchestra, and to keep a Township child continuously in the Del Valle Tubercular Preventorium from the fund collected for that purpose last year. Under the capable chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Dusterberry this fund was raised to nearly $700 within two months, the collection being completed at the beginning of this year.

In Federation work we entertained the Alameda County Federation at luncheon, in the beautiful gardens of Mrs. Joseph Shinn of Niles; we have followed a health program as outlined by our County Health Chairman (and at this time I wish to again express our thanks to the speakers of this outline, and to Mrs. F. V. Jones, who has arranged for these speakers,) we enjoyed an afternoon of music from the choir of the Alta Mira Club of San Leandro; and also an afternoon program from Mrs. Luther Williamson, our County President.

We have been exceptionally active in the philanthropic field this year, having contributed $75.00 to Del Valle Bed fund, $20.00 to the Mississippi flood relief, $10.00 to the Livermore Veterans Christmas; $10.00 to the Pacific Protective Association; $1 to the Indian girls Christmas tree; $10.00 to the Kinard scholarship memorial; $25.00 to the Township orchestra, and the use of our club house for a Christmas tree to the needy children of our own township. This totals to $151 given by our club for philanthropic purposes. I think this is something of which every club member may be proud, and is an outstanding fact of our year especially in view of the fact that we find our treasury at the end of the year in an exceptionally healthy state.

We owe this large treasury to the activities of our Dramatic Section, the chairman of our luncheon and dinner committees, and especially to our Ways and Means Committee, under the splendid leadership of Mrs. C. E. Martenstein. And I wish at this time to thank these chairmen, and my other chairmen of standing committees and special committees and their committee-women for the splendid co-operation and support they have always accorded my efforts—especially mentioning Mrs. Frank Dusterberry, who for two years has never failed us in a program; Mrs. Ormsby, without whom a President would be indeed handicapped; Mrs. T. E. Chadbourne and her crew of gardeners; Mrs. Martenstein whose work we have all witnessed; Mrs. Ellsworth who has so happily piloted us through five refreshment treats; and also Mrs. Harry Salz and Mrs. Gatchell, who, in the illness of their chairman, have so capably upheld the music committee; never having failed us during the whole year. I also wish at this time to try and express the real love that has grown within my heart for my board, which has stood behind me 100 per cent in everything I have wanted to do. It has never been my experience to know a finer group of women and my deepest regret in retiring from the Presidency is that I must lose them as my official family. They are leaving a very tender spot in my heart.

Your President has been a very busy person during the year. She has written 127 letters. She has presided at 11 regular meetings, including our annual luncheon, ten board meetings, one emergency meeting of County Federation, 11 reciprocal luncheons, 3 days at the Stockton convention of the district, 5 days at the Sacramento State Convention, 3 days at the Alameda Convention of the District, one County Convention, two card parties, 3 days of Country store, two Men's Club dinners, two days at the Institute of International Relations, including the Ambassadorial dinner, a meeting with each of the standing committees in her own home at the beginning of the year to plan the year's work, and represented the club at the Niles Memorial library dedication, making a total of 66 days, or over two months in your service—an average of over two days a week, not taking into account numerous section and committee meetings throughout the year. In this way she has endeavored to be worthy of your wonderful support of her endeavors, and it is in view of this tremendous call upon your President's and in that she leaves this last word with you—that you support and encourage her successor as you have her, and so make her work, also, light and happier, that she may serve you the better.

And so I bring my four years of service to a close, passing on to my successor a fine, healthy progressive club, with 20 more members than we had four years ago; with its average meeting attendance raised to 75; its treasury bulging, and entirely out of debt. Trusting that my service has been satisfactory to you—and predicting the years to come full of success and wonderful achievement. Respectfully submitted by your President,
WINIFRED HANDLEY BENDEL.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Prettiness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

Then He Gave It Up

Told by Vincent Massey, Canadian minister, at the Knife and Fork club dinner:

An English bird lover was trying to interest a woman in the cardinal.

"I want you to see the cardinal," he said.

"Sir," she replied, "I do not care to meet an ecclesiastic."

"But this is a bird," he protested.

"Sir," she said, "I am not interested in his private life."—Detroit News.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Within ten days, thousands of anti-prize fight petitions will be placed in circulation as the first step toward the concerted attack on legalized prize fighting in California. Attorneys have completed the last details of legal formalities and the petitions were ordered printed. As soon as they are ready, they will be distributed throughout the State. The first consignment of several thousand will go to ministers affiliated with the California State Church Federation.

San Francisco will be host to the annual national convention of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America on June 12. It was announced recently by H. W. Klein of the Southern Pacific Company. The association comprises men and women holding executive positions in transportation firms. The sessions will be held in the Palace Hotel here on June 12, and at the Athens Athletic Club in Oakland June 13.

There are more than a million Californians, young and old, in the kindergartens, elementary schools and high schools of the state. This is according to figures announced by the State department of education. No estimates are given of enrollment in universities and parochial and private schools, over which the department has no direct supervision. In 952 kindergartens, 73,001 wee Californians are enrolled. Girls number 36,694 and boys 36,307.

One hundred men and women of the Stockton community are busily engaged working out the details for the second annual water carnival and regatta, to be held at Stockton May 26 and 27 under the auspices of the San Joaquin Water Carnival and Regatta Association. The association will celebrate the progress made on the deep water channel to the sea, as actual digging will start July 1 this year.

Mr. Taxpayer owes the state and the cities and counties of California an average annual tax bill of $333,800,000. It was announced by Dixwell L. Pierce, secretary of the state board of equalization. And he can't escape paying part of it, even if he dies, for the estate tax nowadays is averaging $7,000,000 a year. But that isn't all. In addition to the tax total announced by Pierce, there are millions of dollars' worth of other fees and charges which come out of taxpayers' pockets for special public services. The tax total collected yearly by local governments, cities and counties was given by Pierce as approximately $250,000,000.

In an airplane wrenched apart by sudden strain of a nosedive, a pilot and two passengers plunged 3,500 feet to instant death at Eureka last week. William Spalletta, flyer of several years' experience, was at the controls of the luckless plane. With him rode Willard Wenzel and Larry Batty, musicians in a Eureka cafe. Behind the dive which carried the three men to death lay Wenzel's fear of approaching deafness. Wenzel, his wife declared after the crash, feared that his impaired hearing might end his career as a musician. He had read of cures being effected by rapid changes in altitude—by diving airplanes. He resolved to try it.

Masonic leaders in Sacramento are beginning preparations for the "diamond jubilee" of the Masonic order in California to be celebrated June 2 near Coloma on the American River. A tent city will be established to house the visiting members of the order from all parts of the State, caterers have been arranged for in San Francisco and there is included in the plans a pageant in which pioneer Masons will be represented, among them John Sutter and Peter B. Lassen, while historic incidents will be re-enacted. Jesse M. Whitely of San Francisco will have charge of the pageant. The date selected for the jubilee is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the establishment of Palmyra Lodge at Placerville.

Carrying letters from 157 disappointed California swains, Miss Emma Lintz, Chicago heiress left Los Angeles last week for her native city to wed her "ideal man." The girl inherited $100,000 recently from Anton Lintz, her father. She announced then that she would remain in Los Angeles until she found a suitable husband. "I received 158 proposals, and one of them is from a man I'm going to marry," she said today. "I won't tell yet who he is, except that he lives in Chicago. The man of my choice didn't propose at all. He wrote that I was a darn fool to look for an ideal man. Said there wasn't any such animal. Then he called me up and we met. This is Leap Year and I told him he was the one for me."

The Palace of Aeronautics is to be one of the outstanding features of the Pacific Southwest Exposition, the "World's Fair of 1928," sponsored by the City of Long Beach and the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. This exposition, opening July 27 and continuing through August, is the Southland's greatest exposition since 1915 and is aviation's first opportunity since it quit "grass cutting" and is "on the wing" to tell the world of its progress, states Hal G. Mors, manager of the aeronautic division.

New Blackboard Idea Has Many Advantages

Experiments looking toward an improved visibility of blackboards in public schools have brought forth the translucent blackboard on whose surface writings are plainly visible from all parts of a room.

This effect is obtained by abandoning the usual opaque board and substituting therefor a ground glass surface uniformly illuminated from the rear. With the customary room illumination, part daylight and part electric, everything on this blackboard is visible from all parts of the room.

Incidental advantages gained are: ease of erasure, ability to use the surface as a translucent screen for projecting lantern slides with the possibility of adding chalk lines to projected diagrams; ability to intersperse chalk talks with lantern slides without changing the general room illumination.

Proof Positive That Story Was Passed Up

Frank Beresford is responsible for the statement that many a good story is never brought to light through lack of faith by the authors in their work. "Some writers with more brass than talent break into print," he avers, "while others discard really worth while material because it falls short of their almost superhuman ideals."

"Of course there is such a thing as overconfidence or conceit, like the young lady whose story was returned from a big magazine. 'The horrid editor sent it back without reading it, she told her mother.'

"But how do you know that, dear?" "Well, I've looked through every page and there isn't a single tear drop on one of them," was the reply."—Los Angeles Times.

Illuminated Clubs

To assist in directing traffic at night, Paris policemen are carrying lighted clubs, somewhat like the illuminated baton of an orchestra leader, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. They are equipped with a red and white bulb, both supplied with current from batteries attached to the policeman's belt. A switch exposes either of the lights desired.

San Francisco has a change of heart!

The "heart of the city" has changed its location. The busiest district of San Francisco now radiates from Market and Turk Streets.

Here are the numerous big stores such as The Emporium and Hales. Here are office buildings, banks, restaurants and a dozen good shows. And here is the city's outstanding hotel of moderate price . . . THE NEW DALI.

Everything in the hotel is new; everything is modern. Everything that can add to the comfort of guests is here. The New Dali lacks only one thing—fashionably high prices. It's a hotel for people who do not want show, but who appreciate downright comfort. Come and enjoy it.

DOLAN OFFERING SPECIAL PRICES ON ALL LUMBER

Hayward Firm Announces Big Price Reductions During Sale

If you are contemplating any additions to your residence or other buildings on your property, or considering the erection of any new structures, be sure to interview officials of the Dolan Lumber and Lumber Company at Ashland and E. 14th streets, Hayward, for they are offering special prices on all new and used lumber and plumbing apparatus during their great removal sale now in effect.

Buying lumber is like buying eggs. The inexperienced purchaser can't always tell which is good and which is bad. Therefore, it reverts to the honesty of the seller as to whether you are being cheated or not. For this reason Dolan has built up a reputation of integrity and dependability surpassed by few if any in this district. When you buy from Dolan's you may be sure you are getting quality and the proper quantity for your money. Don't buy from the questionable lumber dealer when you can get the best and the cheapest at Dolan's.
